React.dev

<https://react.dev/learn>

React.dev is the official website to learn React. It provides comprehensive resources and tutorials for mastering React development.

The screenshot shows the 'Quick Start' page of the React documentation. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for 'Search', 'Ctrl + K', 'Learn' (which is highlighted), 'Reference', 'Community', 'Blog', and user settings. A 'Support Ukraine' button is also present. On the left, a sidebar has 'GET STARTED' and 'LEARN REACT' sections. Under 'GET STARTED', there are links for 'Quick Start' (which is selected and highlighted in blue), 'Tutorial: Tic-Tac-Toe', 'Thinking in React', and 'Installation'. Under 'LEARN REACT', there are links for 'Describing the UI', 'Adding Interactivity', 'Managing State', and 'Escape Hatches'. The main content area features a large heading 'Quick Start' and a paragraph welcoming users to the React documentation. Below this is a box titled 'You will learn' containing a bulleted list of topics. Further down, there's a section titled 'Creating and nesting components' with a descriptive text about components. At the bottom, there's a feedback section asking if the page was useful and two thumbs-up icons. To the right of the main content, there's a sidebar titled 'ON THIS PAGE' listing various React concepts like 'Creating and nesting components', 'Adding styles', etc.
